ST JUDE'S NATIVITY PLAY

Imaginative lighting, superb music from the Youth Choir and Orchestra led by Gillian Lea-Cox and of course the charm of the child actors made St Jude's nativity play on Christmas Eve a memorable occasion for a very full congregation.

Produced by Linda Ayers, with the assistance of Anthea Davidson who made the costumes, Jill Ambrose and Barbara Honeyball, members of the Sunday School aged from 4-11 and some of their younger brothers and sisters played their parts with confidence; the Archangel Gabriel in particular the form of Victoria Mass being clearly heard all over the church, Olivia Wakefield was Mary, Joseph was played by Simon Bailey. Sophie Ambrose, Yvonne Charras and Elizabeth Enitage had rehearsed themselves on woodwinds and Alys Edwards played the harp.

Acting vicar Ralph Baldry led the unaccustomed applause for their performance at the end of the service. RW

ACTIVE TOWNSWOMEN

Ladies, are you free on Monday afternoons? Would you like to come to Townswomen Guild meeting on the first Monday of the month at 2pm till 4pm at St. Jude's Church Rooms? You will find a friendly group of people, an interesting talk or film. There are also coach outings, and a garden party. There are also further activities within the Hendon group of Guilds. Some members have enjoyed taking part in Bridge and Bowls tournaments and other competitions.

For further information ring Secretary on 458 5072.

INSTITUTE SEEKS ENTHUSIASTS

Would you like to teach adults at the Institute? Like all adult education centres, we are constantly on the lookout for people with the ability to pass on their knowledge, skills and enthusiasm to our students. Some of our most successful courses are suggested to us by individuals who contact us with a view to teaching a subject in which they have a particular interest and expertise.

Many of them are not, in fact, qualified teachers, yet they have a tremendous aptitude for stimulating the learning process in others and, with a little help and encouragement from us, they become first-rate part-time tutors, even if they do not have any certificates to prove it. They often seem to find that teaching provides a rewarding contrast with the usual daily routine, and consequently their approach is refreshing and their enjoyment transmits itself to the class.

If you have a subject which you believe would appeal to students of the Institute please contact the Principal, Josephine White, or the Vice-Principal, Richard Bradbury, who will be delighted to discuss your proposal. Now is a particularly good time to do so, because the planning for the programme of courses for the 1987-88 session is in full swing. As it happens, we are already aware of certain subjects for which we may well require new tutors in the near future, and these are listed below:

Art, Craft and Dressmaking
Foreign Languages (including Portuguese)

General Interests (including Assertiveness Training, Counselling Skills, Film Studies and Non-Advanced Microcomputing)

Physical Activities and Health (including Health Education, Self Defence and Tennis)

If your specialisation is not on the list, please do not be put off. One of the most exciting characteristics of adult education is that, because many of its students are not studying for examinations, it can be more experimental and far-reaching in the field of courses it offers to the public.

We look forward to hearing from you! RB
