

Garden Suburb Infants School held their 100th Harvest Festival service, this year in the Free Church. Led by head teacher Sarah Sands 180 children and many of their parents processed through the Suburb from the school in Childs Way. "We wanted to celebrate our centenary with the local community and, with many children dressed in traditional national costumes, to celebrate the cultural diversity of our school."

Sunday 7 October saw the opening of the new playground at Lyttelton Playing Fields. The committee responsible for raising the funds for the new equipment hosted a spectacular opening ceremony that offered local residents to enjoy an open-air Zumba class, performances from local bands such as Sound of the Suburb and chanteuse Sophie Horowitz, drumming classes and drama workshops, not to mention the many fun stands offering hot-dogs, candy floss and more. The event was a big success with over 500 people attending from the surrounding area and celebrating the new facility. The new amphitheatre is now 99% complete and should be an excellent place for live performances which are planned for next spring.
